

Call for Participation

The First Colorado Celebration of Women in Computing will be a regional meeting in Boulder, Colorado to encourage the research and career interests of women in computing. CCWIC provides an opportunity for technical women from Colorado and neighboring states to meet and share experiences and strategies for success.

Students

Undergraduate and graduate students can participate by:

- * Submitting a full paper or poster abstract for presentation
- * Submitting a brief abstract for a 5-minute mini-presentation
- * Submitting any topic for group discussion (Birds of a Feather)
- * Attending the celebration to meet other women in computing, to learn more about career choices and graduate study, and to attend a career fair about internships and full-time positions.

Professionals

Professionals in academia and industry can participate by:

- * Submitting a brief abstract for a 5-minute mini-presentation
- * Submitting any topic for group discussion (Birds of a Feather)
- * Bringing information about your company, industry or programs
- * Attending the celebration to meet other women in computing and to share your experiences with students as a panelist or in informal interactions; topics of interest include careers, graduate study, work/life integration, etc.

All submissions are due by Friday, February 8th, 2008
