Redefining “the graduate experience”

CU-Boulder graduate students take on challenges like renewable energy, climate change, natural disasters, and biotechnology—with outstanding professors who collaborate between the sciences, law, business, engineering, education, journalism, architecture, the humanities, and the arts.

Doctorate candidate Sophia Liu sits near an area burned in a brush fire in Boulder, Colorado. Liu, who lives near the area that was burned, studied first-hand how social media was used to disseminate information during the crisis.